HOW BRIGHT'S DISEASE STARTS.

Indigestion, biliousness, blood poisoned with urea and uric acid (which should have been excreted by the kidneys), rheumatic pains in nerves and joints, causing irritation of the kidneys, then pains over the small of the back, marks sure approach of Bright's Disease. Do not delay taking Foley's Kidney Cure, for it makes the kidneys right.

IN MEMORIAM.

MRS. UNETTA SUTTON CHILES was born in Scott county, two miles from Georgetown, September 29th, 1814, not quite eighty-seven years ago. She was one of twelve children, nine daughters and three sons, eight of whom (seven daughters and one son) attained the average age of more than eighty-four years. The last member of this remarkable family, Mrs. Jonathan Morton, of Liberty, Missouri, still survives at the age of eighty-four. I doubt if many of us ever before knew of a family whose physical vigor and longevity exceeded this.

Mrs. Chiles grew to womanhood in Scott, but the family shortly after, on the death of her father, Col. Wm. Sutton, removed to Shelbyville, where November 10, 1836, at the age of twenty-two, she was married to Mr. Walter Carr Chiles, an honored citizen of Frankfort. Ever since, her home has been in our little hill-girt city. For nearly sixty-five years she has lived and wrought among our people. I suppose there are not a half dozen people now in our city who were here when she came. We, therefore, mourn to-day one of our oldest neighbors, one of our best and most respected and beloved residents.

Of Mrs. Chiles' nine children but two are living, Mr. Edward J. Chiles, of Philadelphia, and Mrs. S. A. Thomas, of this city. She is also survived by ten grandchildren, five grandsons and five granddaughters.

Mrs. Chiles' religious life began in her early years, and grew with her growth and strengthened with her strength. She was baptized when nine years of age by John T. Johnson, that famous evangelist, of pioneer times, and had her first membership in the old Berea Church, five miles from Georgetown. Her connection with the Christian Church of Frankfort dates from her coming to our city to live. She has always been a most intelligent believer in Christ, and a most loyal adherent of his cause. Her Christian faith was her constant solace and support during all the vicissitudes of her long and toilsome pilgrimage, and her triumph when the last hour came.

Some twenty-four years ago, by reason of a fall, she became disabled, and in consequence has been confined to her house, and almost to her room and chair ever since. Her sufferings by reason of this unfortunate accident have been great, though borne with unceasing patience.

Twenty-seven years ago her husband, a worthy officer of the church for many years, a successful merchant of our city, a high-minded man and an earnest Christian, passed to his reward, leaving her to bear alone the heavy responsibilities of life. But how bravely, how cheerfully and how successfully she has borne them, all of us know.

Mrs. Chiles was in many ways a wonderful woman. She had great force of character and great independence of mind. She formed her own judgments of persons and things, and confidently relied on them. She did her own thinking, and always acted as she thought. There was nothing neutral about her. You always knew where to find her. She was a positive, out and out character. And there was no deceit in her. She would say nothing behind your back that she would not say to your face. She was the soul of frankness and honesty. And while to some, who did not know her well, she may have seemed rather stern of spirit, to those who knew her best she was the embodiment of love and tenderness.

Unselfishness was a prominent feature of her life. She loved to do for others, and always thought of herself last. And a truer friend no one ever had.

What boundless energy was hers, and what unceasing industry. And that, too, down to the very end of her life. She had no years of dotage or of second childhood, and nothing approaching it. When I last talked with her, some two or three weeks ago, I thought I never saw her brighter or cheerier. And as ever, when I have called to see her during all these twenty-five years, her hands were busy with some useful work.

I think she went as she would have wished to go, without any failing of her powers, before she had become a helpless burden, and her interest and satisfaction of living had passed away.

In a word, she was a great woman, and we shall not soon look upon her like again.

To me she was a loving, confidential friend, and my heart mourns to-day with all these bereaved ones. She lies in yonder casket, beautiful in death, but her ransomed spirit, out of pain and out of prison, now basks in the sunshine of God's presence, and has already, we trust, joined in glad reunion with the loved and lost.

God comfort the sorrowing son and daughter, the grandchildren, and all the kindred, connections and friends, who feel that earth is poorer without her, and to whom her passing brings sore and irreparable loss.

And may they find their comfort in the sure promises of God, in which she trusted so long and so implicitly, and specially in that precious promise which says: "I heard a voice from heaven saying unto me, write, blessed are the dead which die in the Lord, from henceforth, yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors, and their works do follow them." G. D.
